THE EASTER TIME.

The glad Easter time is that anniversary which is replete with the deepest significance. "The stone rolled away" is proof positive that the tomb hath not power to hold indefinitely that life which constitutes the immortal soul. That "empty grave" found on that Easter morning stretching far back into the centuries, was the grand proclamation of that immortality of which the men of old have written, and of which poets have sung. The Easter time should be with all of us, each day during the year. It isn't the risen Christ of nearly two thousand years ago that we so much need, as it is the risen Christ of to-day; and Easter teaches us this one fact, if it teaches anything, that to all the human kind there may come an immediate resurrection of all its buried hopes. We have but to put ourselves in living touch with that ascended life, over which death and the grave doing their best, could not hold within their cold embrace.

The lesson of Easter should not be lost in prolonged and heated discussion whether Christ did or did not lie in the grave three days and three nights—for let that be as it may, the lesson that Easter teaches stands good, that there is a risen Christ for all who will receive him. And it is this all important truth which gives hope and a new life to all God's creatures. The story of Easter makes essentially the two worlds one. The here and the hereafter meet in glad embrace on every Easter morning. We shall never forget how we heard some years ago, the Rev. Dr. Collyer preach in his church in New York city an Easter sermon, which was all aglow with the thought that the life here and the life beyond are supplement and complement of each other, and, though not visible one to the other, are forevermore one and the same. Not only this, for the Rev. Dr. declared that he was sure that we have intelligent communication with those of our friends "gone before"; that they come to us from their ascended lives to bear us company.

With surpassing eloquence and with touching pathos, Dr. Collyer said to his hearers on that bright, Easter morning: "Call me Spiritualist or whatever else you will, you must not deprive me of the knowledge I have—that I saw but a few mornings ago my daughter May, coming up the garden walk, with eye as bright and hair as flaxen as when I laid her away twenty-five years ago. Yes," he exclaimed with an eloquence that cannot be described, "we have daily a risen Christ, who will come into our lives, and make his abode with us, if we will let him, and we have also risen friends who will daily come into our homes, and thus make the family circle complete." How full of meaning and promise is the Easter time! Then do not delay at the open grave to prove or disprove that Christ has lain there, and has arisen, but hasten to receive that unquestioned truth that his ascended life answers its fullest purpose in its descension into the hearts of men and women everywhere. We do lose so much in stopping by the way, bickering over the literal truths of this or that doctrine that we oftentimes impoverish ourselves spiritually. It is enough for us to know that the sun shines, and that we may receive its genial and life-giving rays, without first analyzing in a chemical way the composition of those rays. It is enough for us to know that heaven is a place of entire happiness and of unceasing activity, without first measuring its streets of gold, and without first tasting the fruit of the trees "on either side of the river." In our persistent and sectarian grasp for that which is non-essential, we oftentimes have let slip the essential. Easter will have answered its full purpose when it shall have persuaded us of a risen Christ, whose mission it is to come into each of our lives. To long delay at the open tomb, that we may mourn and shed tears over the dead Christ, is to keep ourselves unfortunately from the living Christ.

It is well that we bring the bud and flower of the early spring time to crown the Easter morning; for it has about it the fragrance and sweetness of a new life.

ARTICLE 31, TOWN WARRANT.

Article 31 of the town warrant "to see if the town will vote to direct the selectmen to prepare a division of the town into convenient voting precincts, and to further conform with the provisions set forth in section 163 of chapter 548 of the acts of the year 1898," should receive the impartial consideration of the voters of Arlington. The Enterprise in making known its views upon this proposed division of the town into several voting precincts, is seeking not necessarily what may be the popular side of the question, but what in justice rightfully belongs to those living in localities more or less distant from the central portion of Arlington. That this division of the town will cost something both in labor and money, should afford no argument against the affirmative vote of the article. Everything done for and by the people, costs something. But in spite of this fact the people are to be accommodated. The general government at Washington recognizes this truth in a striking way in its system of free delivery of mail matter in all cities, and in all villages of the required population—but it costs the government a good round sum to do all this. But what of it? Suppose for a moment, that the citizens of Arlington were to be deprived of its present excellent system of free delivery of their mail matter, right at their homes while they are sipping their morning cup of coffee, what do you think would be the outcome? Why, they would be up and in arms, instantly; you may be sure that in such instance immediate petitions would find their way to Washington, asking the United States authorities to restore their rights at whatever cost. And in the same way those of our townsmen, living as we have already said, somewhat remote from the center, have the right to ask and expect the favor asked by them in Article 31. A voting precinct should be established readily and cheerfully for Arlington Heights, whereby the no inconsiderable population of the Heights and Crescent Hill would be accommodated. And then by right, another voting precinct should be established in the eastern portion of the town—at or near Henderson street. Because the majority of voters in the town may live conveniently near the only polling place now had, is not a sufficient reason why a negative vote should be given the article in question. Let us as the scriptures put it, seek "whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just." It always has, and it always will cost something to do right. But this truth affords no reason why a money consideration should step in so as to defeat justice. There isn't a village in all New York State so far as we know, of the required population that does not have several voting precincts—and what is true of New York, is largely true of the country through. The Enterprise heartily favors the passage on Monday evening next, of Article 31. We favor its passage, because it is eminently right and just that the more remote, and yet populous portions of the town, should be accommodated in the manner indicated and set forth in the article presented in the town warrant. We can but think, if the question upon which action is to be had, is considered by our people in the spirit of all fairness, that Article 31 will receive on Monday evening the majority vote.

THE DIFFERENT RELIGIOUS DENOMINATIONS.

It has been said over and over again that it would be well if the different religious denominations would unite on some common basis, and thus have fewer churches and higher salaried clergymen. In the first place, such a coming together of the churches differing in faith could not in any possible way be effected; and, in the second place, it would not be the better way of doing things, could such a uniting of forces be brought about. It must not be forgotten that what we term the social or friendly element enters, as it should, into all church membership. That one is however good is not a sufficient reason why he or she should become our intimate friend. We know, and so do you, more than one man and more, than one woman of unquestioned Christian character, and yet in all their social life they are repulsive to us. We avoid them whenever we can, for the simple reason that they are distasteful to us. Christian attainments do not, neither can they, make up for social unlikeliness.

It will be found on close examination that our varied church membership is based in no small way on what may be termed social caste. And this must be the case in the very nature of things. Conversion, or a "new heart," has never made over the brain of another. So, that as long as these differences in social and intellectual make-up exist (and they will forever exist), so long shall we have the different religious denominations. How would it be possible, do you suppose, for the Methodists and the Unitarians to worship together? Why, they would feel so ill at ease in each other's company on a Sunday, attempting to worship at the same altar, that they would most likely forget to say their prayers. And yet, each of these religious denominations is to be equally commended for its religious faith and zeal. But so unlike are they in their social natures that no religion has thus far been revealed that could bring them on bended knee at the same altar. And then, again, take the Congregationalists and the Baptists—their social likes and dislikes are so utterly dissimilar that it is hardly conceivable how they could worship under the same roof, even if there were not such striking differences in their idea of church membership. It isn't so much "immersion" and "close communion" that keep the Congregational and Baptist brother apart in their worship as it is their unlike social natures. And who would ever think that our good Episcopalian friends could easily unite with any other denomination in its worship? And yet the Episcopalians are the most genial people in all the world, and they are distinguished, too, for their religious faith and zeal—and the same is true of our Roman Catholic brethren. But all these different religious bodies differ from each other in social and intellectual affinities and largely for this reason comes our variety in all church organizations. It is an illogical, if not a stupid notion, that because our next door neighbor is a Christian man that we must, therefore, frequently invite him to become our guest. Although he may be fit for the "kingdom," still he will be repulsive to us if he be socially unlike what we enjoy. Why, Christ himself loved a man of the world at first sight, because in temperament and sympathy, and, indeed, in all the virtues which enter into social life, he was much like the Master. So long as "like seeks like" in the social and intellectual world, we shall have the different religious organizations. And this all comes about from a natural law, which can no more be disturbed than can the law of gravitation.

WHAT THE BOY SEES.

What the average boy sees all about him, and above him in Nature, would fill a book. It was on Monday afternoon, as we were on our way home from the office, a group of boys called our attention to a beautiful segment of a rainbow in mid-heaven. There was apparently no reason why a rainbow should be seen in that position at that time of day—it should have been more to the eastward. And so the boys were wondering. We have always insisted that we do not give due credit to our boys and girls for their keen observation of things in the natural world, neither do we give due credit to their reasoning powers. We ought to sit more frequently than we do at the feet of the children, and so learn of them. It becomes more and more evident that the older people do not know it all, however stoutly we may claim such knowledge.

April 1st, or "All Fools' Day," is fun alive for the boys, and although the day has lost to us much of its primitive significance, still we sympathize with the boys in the side-splitting enjoyment they experience in fooling their elders. April 1st is about the only day in the year that the boys can let themselves loose, so why should they for a brief hour, partially forget the formal respect they have been taught to show their seniors, and really make the elderly man or woman the subject of some stupendous joke? We are glad that April 1st is a red-letter day in the calendar of the average youngster. It isn't the fooling of the boys that we so much fear, as it is that of the older grown so often seen in business life. The fun loving spirit of youth we can not only stand, but we can enjoy it, and do enjoy it. But to be made game of in business or social life, by men and women mature in years, and professing all the Christian virtues, is what most tries one's soul.

We desire to call the attention of all interested in the education of the children, to the somewhat satirical poem found on the last page of the High School Clarion. There is being too much of just such work done, in many of our public schools.

Every pupil in the grammar schools of Arlington, and especially every pupil in the High School, should read the communications of Veritas, published nearly every week in the Enterprise. He writes in an interesting and instructive way, upon subjects of immediate and far-reaching interest.

The National Democracy seems about to split on the question, whether the dinner in New York City, shall be ten dollars a plate or one dollar a plate. Bryan true to the Jeffersonian principle insists on the one dollar arrangement, while Perry Belmont votes, both hands up, for the ten dollar racket. We sympathize with Mr. Bryan's idea of democratic prices.

It is exceedingly fortunate that there were no lives lost in the wreck of the Norseman off Marblehead Neck. The steamer left Liverpool March 18th, and had smooth sailing until she struck the dense fog of Wednesday morning, off Marblehead.

It will be seen in this issue that the Easter music for Sunday in the several churches of Arlington, has been selected with much taste, and its rendition will prove an attractive feature of Sunday's worship. The other services of the day will be in keeping with the hour.

The members of the Legislature at their annual dinner at the Hotel Vendome, on Wednesday evening, entertained United States Senator Hoar, the senior senator from this state. Senator Hoar made one of his happiest speeches in reply to the cordial reception given him. For fifty years Senator Hoar has been continuously in public life, and during all that while no man of either political party has ever questioned his honesty or his ability.

Before the American people are through with the Philippine war, which is now apparently upon us in full force, it will most likely be seen that Senator Hoar was right in the early protest he entered against the government at Washington gobbling up those islands, and assuming the government of the same.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Why did George Washington always stand when sleeping? Because he would not lie.

Who is first to greet us as we approach Boston? Charles.

What wife is always at home and first to receive us on our return? Ail-wife.

On what principle do we justify our Gatling-gun method, of christianizing the Filipinos? On the principle that "heaven is their home."

Richard A. Dana being asked to define news, replied: I will give you an illustration rather than a definition. Now young man, while you are on the street you may see a dog bite a man, that would not be news, as it is a common occurrence; but should you see a man bite a dog, write it up instantly. That would be uncommon; it would be news.

Representative Lentz of Ohio points out that Gen. Eagan, should he live as long as ordinary men do, will receive, as a reward for calling his commanding general "a liar in his throat and in his heart, and in every pore," a grand aggregate in salary of $78,275 with a vacation of six years thrown in.

Aristotle's two treatises, one on ethics and the other on politics, are practically works on the science of education. To them the world owes two great ideas: that it is the duty of the state to educate, and that education should be compulsory.

Future inhabitants of Arlington will have great reason to be thankful for the wisdom manifested by our citizens a year ago in purchasing land for a future site for a town house and other public buildings in the best appointed location in the town. Severe experience has taught the urban populations in Massachusetts that it is of little use to erect fine buildings, unless they can be placed on fine sites. If a town hall of noble aspect were built on a narrow street or on a shallow lot so that no one could survey its just proportions and decorations, or its facade could not be seen as a whole from a single point of view (except one too close for a general view) the money expended would, in a large degree, be wasted. Our citizens are already looking forward with pleasant expectancy and can hardly bide the time when they shall behold a delightful triad of public buildings surrounded by spacious and ornamental grounds adorning the center of naturally one of the most beautiful towns in the state. It is devoutly to be hoped that buildings hereafter erected in this vicinity will be in keeping architecturally and otherwise with those already occupying these grounds and with the town hall to be erected which will of course surpass all the others.

Much as man has learned about electricity, its properties, the laws which govern its action, and its practical applications, he is still apparently as far as ever from being able to answer the question, What is electricity? He is still ignorant of its fundamental relation to matter and motion. He speaks of electricity as if it were a fluid; but there are grave reasons why it cannot be regarded as a fluid in the ordinary sense. It has been suggested that it may be a form of energy; but there are insuperable objections to this view. Even if electricity should be proved to be a kind of motion, as some are disposed to regard it, it will still be most convenient to regard it as a fluid even as heat is spoken of as a fluid when it is said to flow from a warmer point of a body to a colder point.

Again, we apply the terms positive and negative, or vitreous and resinous to electricity. Some maintain that there are two distinct kinds of electricity, one (positive or vitreous), such as is usually excited by friction on glass; the other (negative or resinous), such as is usually excited by friction on resinous bodies like amber and sealing-wax. Such claim that the relation between the two kinds of electricity is analogous to the relation between an acid and a base and that from their union a neutral compound results. But it suits the purposes of modern science much better to regard positive and negative as merely different states of electricity, and the distinction between these states may conveniently be regarded as analogous to the distinction between compressed air and rarefied air. Imagine a closed hollow cylinder containing a piston and a piston rod. The piston is midway the cylinder and the air each side of the piston is equally dense and of the same temperature. Then the pressure on both sides of the piston are equal—there is equilibrium—there is nothing that indicates the existence of pressure. Let the piston be pushed toward one end. The air on one side of the piston becomes condensed and its pressure is correspondingly increased; while the air on the other side is rarefied and its pressure is diminished. Several useful applications of this analogue can be made: (1) Before the piston was pushed along, or, in the language of modern physics, before work had been expended upon the air, there was no evidence of the existence of energy in the air or of the existence of air itself. Until work is expended (we will say for convenience) upon electricity it shows no signs of possessing energy and there is a complete absence of any indication of its existence. (2) After work has been performed on the air, it manifests its energy by the unequal pressures on the opposite sides of the piston and by its tendency to resume its former state of equilibrium of pressure and equality of density. Similarly after work has been done upon electricity as when a glass rod is rubbed with silk, an electrical pressure is developed, energy is manifested in its tendency to return to or resume its normal condition. This electrical pressure is called in technical language electro-motive force.

(3) It is not possible to condense the air on one side of the piston without rarefying the air on the opposite side of the piston. We may arbitrarily call the condensed air positive and the rarefied air negative. It is not possible to create a condition or state of electricity called positive on a glass rod by rubbing it with silk, without at the same time and in the same proportion creating an opposite state of electricity on the silk called negative.

(4) No one thinks that he creates, generates, or produces air when he pushes the piston and disturbs the equilibrium of the air. No more has any one a right to say that he "generates" or "produces" electricity when he rubs glass with silk and disturbs electrical equilibrium. Electricity like air is everywhere present, but nowhere manifest until you disturb its equilibrium. Disturb it, and it will return it for tat.

(5) There is a definite direction in which the unbalanced air pressure acts and tends to move the piston and to move itself; similarly there is a definite direction in which electrical pressure manifests itself, and in which electricity tends to move or "flow," e. g. from the positive toward the negative.

(6) When the unbalanced pressure of the air moves the piston, the work that was expended in disturbing the equilibrium of the air is restored, and the motion communicated to the piston can be transmitted to machinery as in the case of street cars propelled by compressed air. It is apparent that the same contrivance, viz., the cylinder and piston, through whose instrumentality work is performed upon the air, becomes in turn the agent through which the air does work. We find an exact analogue of this in the case of electricity. A dynamo machine is an instrument used to disturb electrical equilibrium or to generate electrical pressure (not to generate electricity as commonly supposed). Now, this electrical pressure reacting through the same identical machine restores the work that was expended upon the electricity when its equilibrium was disturbed, and the dynamo machine becomes in turn an electric motor which propels cars and other machinery in much the same fashion as a compressed air motor. This is what is commonly denominated the reversibility of the dynamo.

The student who will ponder well the above analogies will lay a sure and invaluable foundation for the study of electrical science. He will at last solve himself from numerous popular errors. Let him not waste his energies in trying to solve the (probably) unsolvable question of what electricity is. Let him remember the words of the immortal Faraday, who near the close of his life confessed that the more he studied electricity the less he knew of its real essence. It is conceded by all electricians that for practical purposes, so far as we now can discern, the solution of this question would be of no benefit to mankind. It is with electrical energy that we are chiefly concerned, and it is of the utmost importance that in our dealings with this subtle agent we find it intimately correlated to all other forms of energy.

TOWN MEETING.

The adjourned Town Meeting held in Town Hall, last Monday evening, March 27th, was well attended, the body of the hall being packed with voters, many of whom stood throughout the session, which lasted over two hours and a half, while the gallery was filled with interested spectators. Promptly at 7.30 o'clock the meeting was called to order by Moderator Robinson and the business of the evening taken up.

It was first voted to take up Article 18, "To hear and act on the reports of the Selectmen and other town officers and committees heretofore appointed." Under this article the report of the committee on street lighting was read by Mr. E. S. Farmer. The committee submitted a report for a three years' contract with the Somerville Electric Light Company, which provides for 93 arc lights of 1200 candle power and 166 incandescent lights of 32 candle power, to be lighted every night until 1 a. m., at a cost of $11,500 per year, and recommended that the town ratify the same. This contract called for an increase of 4 arc lights and 22 incandescents, and all the incandescents were to be increased from 25 to 32 candle power. The report of the committee was accepted. Mr. Drew, a member of the committee, then took the floor and opposed the recommendations of the committee. He stated that he understood there were steps being taken to form a corporation in town which would undertake the work. He was in favor of giving the Somerville Company the contract for one year instead of three. A discussion between Mr. Drew and Mr. Goodwillie in regard to the figures submitted by the Welsbach Company was followed by the motion of Mr. William G. Peck to adopt the recommendations of the committee. This motion provoked further discussion, in which Mr. Drew, Mr. E. S. Farmer, Mr. R. J. Hardy and Mr. E. Goodwillie took part.

Mr. Drew attempted to take the floor again in reply to Mr. Goodwillie, and was ruled out of order by the moderator, as he had already spoken twice on the question. The question of allowing Mr. Drew to again speak was put to the meeting and carried. Following him, Mr. Timothy O'Leary obtained the floor and stated that, while on the other points he agreed with the committee of which he was a member, he was opposed to granting a contract for more than one year. Mr. E. S. Farmer called for the terms of the contract, and the moderator read the document in full. Mr. R. J. Hardy spoke of the dissatisfaction there had been with the light furnished by the Somerville Company. Mr. W. W. Kimball, a member of the committee, said that in regard to the new company which had been spoken of, it had no financial responsibility, as far as he could discover. Mr. Kimball was an earnest advocate of giving the Somerville people a three years' contract. Mr. Drew interrupted Mr. Kimball twice, but the latter refused to yield. Another discussion concerning the attitude of the lighting committee in regard to length of contract was participated in by Messrs Drew, Kimball, and O'Leary.

Mr. Spurr tried to get the matter referred back to the committee to make more favorable terms for one year but the point was raised that the committee had been discharged. Mr. George D. Moore favored renewing the old contract for one year. The town might want to take the matter up later on. Mr. A. P. Gage moved that the town appropriate the sum of $11,500 to light the streets of the town for the ensuing year. The motion was ruled out of order. Several amendments to the original motion of Mr. Peck were proposed. Mr. S. A. Fowle moved as a substitute motion that the matter be left to the selectmen with full power to make a contract for one year with the Somerville Company. The vote on the question of substitution was almost unanimous, and the final vote on the matter was unanimously in favor of Mr. Fowle's motion.

Mr. Spurr the chairman of the committee of 21 made a few introductory remarks in submitting their report which had been printed and distributed at the door. The committee had been divided into nine sub-committees which had carefully considered the subjects submitted to them. Of the appropriations were voted as recommended by the committee the tax rate for the ensuing year would be $18.50 on the thousand. Mr. Scannell moved that articles 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 30, and 32 be taken up at the same time, but subsequently withdrew his motion as Mr. Peter Schwamb wished to make a report for the committee on water supply in conveying the stand pipe lot to the Metropolitan Water commissioners, and also to retain the present water supply to be used as the water commissioners deem proper, and to maintain the reservoir as it is at present.

On motion of Mr. Tuttle it was voted to allow the building committee of the new Locke School to pay from the appropriation for the same, as much as they deem advisable for the proper grading of the lot. Article 18 was laid upon the table and Mr. Scannell renewed his motion. Mr. Spurr moved that the articles in the report of the committee of 21 be read and action taken in order. The appropriations were passed as recommended by the committee with but little discussion, the only two upon which any amount of time was spent being the appropriation for sidewalks and for Pine street. For Broadway the sum of $4,300 was appropriated to be used for the exclusive construction of under drains and necessary catch basins. In the matter of highways and bridges the committee recommended the appropriation of $16,020.47, together with the sum of 1,735.27 now in the town treasury as the tax upon the Boston Elevated R. R. under Section 10 Chapter 578, of the statutes of 1898, and the sum of $1,744.26 now in the town treasury, the income on account of betterments on Jason street, making a total of 19,500 00. The appropriation for the salary of the auditors went over until the recommendation of the committee that the selectmen be instructed and empowered to employ a professional auditor to audit the books and accounts of the town for the current year, and that the cost of same be paid from the taxes of 1900, had been acted upon.

Mr. Whittemore moved that the salary of town clerk, treasurer, and collector be raised to $1,900 and that the extra 50 be used in purchasing some gift for Mr. Locke to show the appreciation in which he is held, and in recognition of his twenty-five years of faithful service. This motion was received with applause but was ruled out of order as the town could not legally appropriate money for such a purpose. After voting the appropriation for the sinking fund, the meeting adjourned on motion of Mr. William G. Peck at 10.10 o'clock to meet again on Monday evening April 3 at 7.45 o'clock. A table of the appropriations made as follows:

Anyone who had occasion to walk from Dame's drug store, on Wednesday morning, up to the tip of the Heights, would have been thoroughly impressed with the fact that Arlington Heights has a system of natural drainage that takes the cake. On the morning to which we refer the water came down from the hill in larger streams than rivulets.

The Moonshine Club met on Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. J. T. White. Progressive whist was the game. There were eleven tables. The members making up this club we have previously published. A most enjoyable collation was served. The prizes were distributed as follows: First ladies' prize, Mrs. B. C. Haskell; second ladies' prize, Mrs. George R. The regular meeting of the Hillside Literary Union was held last Wednesday night in the lecture room of the Park Avenue Congregational Church. Mr. Herbert Pierce read a paper on "A five mile walk in the early morning." It was a masterpiece and elicited warm commendations. The wish was earnestly expressed that it might be preserved in some permanent form, for general circulation. It was a literary as well as scientific treat. Mr. Arthur Perkins also read a most delightful description of one of his visits to Lynn Woods. These meetings show beyond question that our young people possess abilities of a high order. Several amendments were proposed to be acted upon at the next meeting. A committee was appointed to arrange for summer meetings and two members were proposed including Dr. Bertha Downing.

Last Monday evening a fire alarm was rung from box 39. An unfinished house on Waverly street had caught fire by an overheated stove, which was used for the purpose of drying the plastering.
The Belmont and Waverly engine companies both responded to the call and subdued the fire before any substantial damage was done. It should be said in connection that our fire ladders are not only ready, but they are experts in dealing with the devouring flames.
The coupling pin of the freight train which passes through here at 9 p. m., broke the other evening, and at once the engine and the several cars became detached from the rear cars, some 16 in number, and made their way to Waltham before the conductor discovered there had been any mishap. When the situation of things became known, the engine put back and found the remaining portion of the train at a point near Hill's crossing. After lots of work and no little swearing, the train made up anew, and went on its way.

The Belmont Park Whist Club held on last Tuesday evening, in the Town Hall, its final party for the season.
Whist was enjoyed for two hours, when the mazy dance followed. Excellent music was furnished by Fletcher's Orchestra, from Cambridge. An elegant supper came in order after the dance.
Two prizes were awarded the lady's prize, consisting of silver ware, was won by Mrs. B. R. Croker. The gentleman's prize, a pair of gold cuff buttons, went to Mr. Charles Suydam.
These parties by the Belmont Park ladies and gentlemen have been generally enjoyed during the past winter.
Along with the amusements there has been in instruction given by way of select readings, essays, and general conversation upon subjects previously assigned.

bidding is expected at the auction of from Mr. C. Parsons.

Our mascot the shepherd dog Crescent contracted the mischievous habit of trying to scratch down the front door of the club house.

The Whist tournament is creating quite an interest and the winner is hard to pick, following is the score:

apart a portion of the Mt. Pleasant Cemetery for such Roman Catholic residents of Arlington as may purchase lots therein." It seems that the wording of this Article sufficiently indicates its meaning. Our Roman Catholic citizens desire that a sufficient portion of the cemetery be reserved for their exclusive use. They desire to follow the teachings and traditions of their ancient Faith which require that the bodies of their departed be interred in consecrated ground. As a matter of convenience it is inexpedient to consecrate individual graves on the occasion of their interment. If a portion of the cemetery is reserved for their interment it may be consecrated as a whole once for all time and thus prevent considerable inconvenience. We fail to understand how any reasonable citizen can object to this arrangement. The plan has already been followed in many of the towns of this state, notably Dedham, Hyde Park and Norwood.
We understand that the petitioners desire to have the matter referred to a committee, who will investigate it in all its bearings, including its legal aspects, give hearings to parties interested, and report at a subsequent meeting of the town. Such a disposal of the Article, we think would be satisfactory to all the citizens of the town.
The annual meeting of the parish of St. John's Church will be held in the church on Easter Monday, April 3, at 8 o'clock.
The Baptist Endeavor Society will meet in the vestry next Sunday evening at 6.30. "The birthday of Hope" is the topic. References, 1 Peter, 1: 1-9.
Miss Gertrude Frost will be the leader.
Two of Arlington's enterprising young ladies, Miss Laurel Hardy and Miss Florence Gray managed a most successful fair in Menotomy Hall last Wednesday evening. The hall was very prettily decorated with evergreens and streamers of red white and blue crepe paper, while the various articles displayed for sale were arranged in a most attractive manner. All of the articles solicited by the young managers and the results show how hard they have worked and to what good purpose.
The fancy table was in charge of Miss Laurel Hardy and Miss Florence Gray assisted by Mrs. N. J. Hardy and Mrs.
E. W. Gray. The fish pond which proved a great center of attraction was in charge of Mrs. Hardy and Mr. Wilmot Jackson, while Miss Hazel Gray looked after the peanut table. Little Alice Hardy presided at the flower booth, and found no difficulty in disposition of her wares. Miss Nellie Williams and Miss Ethel Rees tended the candy table, and Mr. N. J. Hardy oversaw the ice cream department. In the evening an entertainment was given consisting of magic lantern pictures by Mr. E. W. Gray, singing by children from the Nickerson Home for little Wanderers in aid of which the fair was held, and recitations by Mrs. Roberts.
Financially the affair was a success the young managers clearing about forty-five dollars to devote to this worthy charity.
H. L. Frost & Co. the florists make an attractive and fragrant showing of Easter lilies in the large window of Nichols' news store.
Mr. Winthrop Puttee, connected with the office of Henry W. Savage, has just sold to Mr. James A. Bailey Jr., for the heirs of Horatio Locke, one half of a double house, a stable and 8,410 square feet of land situated at 12 Willow place, the whole being assessed for three thousand one hundred and fifty dollars.
Mr. Bailey buys for investment.

The regular meeting of the Y. P. S.
C. E. connected with the Pleasant Street Congregational Church will be held in vestry as usual Sunday evening, at 6.30 o'clock. It will be an Easter meeting with "The birthday of hope" as the topic. References, 1 Peter 1: 1-9. Miss Nellie A. Lockhart will be the leader.

Owing to the limited seating capacity of the Town Hall only legal voters will be admitted to the floor at the adjourned Town Meeting on Monday evening April 3rd. The gallery will be reserved especially for ladies and their

The case of Mr. James came up Thursday morning before Judge McDaniel at Cambridge. Wm. H. H. Tuttle appeared for the prosecution and Melvin Adams for the defence. After Mr.
Tuttle's opening the case, in which he stated at some length what the prosecution expected to prove the following witnesses were sworn, and gave evidence for the prosecution. William E.
Wood, and William B. Wood of the firm of William T. Wood & Co., Mr. Easton a former employee of the company, Jesse Swadkins, Forest S. Wyman, Joseph Wyman, Charles Ilsley, Patrick Merrick and John Simons. At this point the court adjourned until Saturday when the defense will put in its side of the case with evidence.

The picture gallery at Robbins Library just at present is made especially attractive by the new pictures on exhibition. Florence is to be seen in a miniature way, in all its artistic outline and filling. But the hangings are so many that to even partially speak of them, would require more time and space than we have to give. But go and see for yourself. We may say that these pictures are obtained as a loan through the Massachusetts Library Club. Any library joining the Massachusetts Library Club may secure these pictures for a brief while to place the same on exhibition in its own rooms.

To the Editor of the Enterprise:
On Tuesday evening, April 11th, there is to be held in Town Hall a meeting which should be of interest to all citizens of Arlington.
The subject under consideration is to be woman suffrage, and there will be present such able exponents of this reform as Col. Thomas Wentworth Hig-ginson and William Lloyd Garrison, Alice Stone Blackwell and Mrs. Lucia T. Ames Mead.
It has been arranged not only to invite, but to urge any who may desire to ask a question or questions, to write the same upon a slip of paper and deposit it in a box, placed for this purpose at the entrance to the hall. Miss Blackwell is to answer these questions.
It is hoped there will be a large number of questions asked, and a large and enthusiastic audience present. No effort will be spared to make the meeting both interesting and profitable, and the names of the speakers alone gives assurance of a rare treat.
Miss Katharine Rucker of Boston, contralto soloist, will add to the evening's entertainment her superb voice.
All are invited. Do not forget the date, Thursday evening, April 11, 8 o'clock, Town Hall.

Don't forget the auction sale on Monday afternoon at 4.30 p. m. of the building on Broadway, formerly owned and occupied by Litchfield, photographer.

The Young Ladies' Mission Circle, connected with the Arlington Baptist Church, held a most successful sale, in spite of the disagreeable weather, at the residence of Mrs. A. C. Rice, on Central street, last Tuesday afternoon and evening. There was a good display of domestic and fancy articles, which were disposed of under the direction of Miss Amy L. Russell and Mrs.
Louise Kidder. A tempting array of home-made and other candies was presided over by Miss H. Priscilla Russell, assisted by Miss Georgiana Sawyer and Miss Blanche Sawyer. Miss Carrie Pillebrown was in charge of the children's table, which was a centre of attraction during the afternoon and early evening. Miss Sophia Freeman easily disposed of some beautiful cut flowers and Easter lilies, while the ice cream department was looked after by Miss Gertrude Frost, Miss Edith Rice, Miss Grace McLane and Miss Lottie Tufts.
There was a good attendance, and the young ladies cleared quite a sum as a result of their efforts.

the following selections Easter Sunday at Park Avenue Congregational Church.

"He is Risen" Caleb Simper

The services of the Baptist Church held in Crescent Hall on Sunday afternoons are worthy of mention. An attractive feature being the excellent selections rendered by the quartette, under the leadership of Mr. Harlan Bean. The Easter program now in preparation for Sunday evening promises to be exceptionally fine. All are invited.

A meeting of the members of Park Avenue Congregational Church was held last Thursday night in the lecture room when final steps were taken in the matter of incorporation. Mr. C. T.
Parsons was elected moderator, and Mr.
Edward Nicoll was sworn in as clerk.
The by laws of the church were read article by article and then adopted as a whole. The officers already appointed were unanimously elected. The meeting then adjourned until Monday April 10.

The entertainment to be given in connection with the sale of work and supper next Wednesday April 5 in Park Avenue Congregational Church will be of a high order. The following will take part Mr. J. Warren Turner, Mr. G. M. Bacon of the Heights and the Misses Alice Hutchinson, Bertha Redman, Rose Morse and Messrs Arthur Tucker and Lester Redman all of Lexington. This array of talent should call out a very large audience.

atus and from any and all claims for damages by reason of any infringement of patent rights in the use of lamps, lights, wires, poles, machinery and ap-"Article 7. It is mutually agreed that deductions shall be made for any and all 'outs' as follows:—At the rate of three and one-half cents per hour, for every hour that an arc light shall remain unlighted, and at the rate of one cent per hour, for every hour that a 32-candle power incandescent light shall remain unlighted, and at a like rate for any part or parts of an hour during which said lights are to be lighted under the provisions of this contract; but if they remain so unlighted because of orders given by the Town to that effect, there shall be no deduction for the period of time and the lights specified in said orders. The Town shall furnish to said Company, on or before the 5th day of each month during the continuance of this contract, a list of the 'outs' for the preceding month, giving times and locations.

"Article 8. The Company hereby agrees that the Town may at all proper times, with or without the Company's knowledge, employ a competent person to test the electrical currents and energy furnished to any or all said lights, and to examine and test the street lamps to ascertain whether or not the Company is complying with the terms of this contract.

"Article 9. In case two tests of any circuit shall be made, separated by intervals of not less than one hour, as provided in Article 8, during one night, and both of said tests shall show that the Company is not furnishing for said lights the electrical current or currents required by this contract, the average of the results of such tests shall be taken and deemed to be actual current and energy furnished for said circuit during the entire lighting time of said night and a proportionate part of the payment for the lights in said circuit for said night, as determined by said average, shall be deducted from the next monthly payment. In case any such examination or tests of any arc or incandescent light shall show that it is not of the candle power required by this contract, such light shall be taken and deemed to be of only one-half its candle power, and shall be paid therefor at only one-half its rate, unless the Company shall, within 24 hours after notice thereof, replace said light with a new light of the required candle power. For the purpose of determining whether any light is of the required candle power said Company agrees that the Town may assume that the electrical current required by this contract has been furnished. In all cases of failure on the part of the Company to comply with the terms of this contract, notice of such failure shall be mailed or otherwise given to the Company during the next period in which the lights are not lighted.

"Article 10. The Board of Selectmen of said Town shall have the right to terminate this contract forthwith in case said company shall fail from any cause arising in whole or in part from the neglect or default of said Company to furnish said lights, and to keep the same lighted as aforesaid, for for three consecutive nights; and upon the termination of this contract payment shall be made pro rata, up to the time of such termination only.

"Article 11. For the purpose of enabling said Town to make its tests, said Company agrees that it will, without charge or expense to said Town, run its wires to such buildings adjacent to the lines to be tested, as the Board of Selectmen may request.

"Article 12. This contract shall begin May 1, 1899, and shall continue until May 1, 1902, subject, however, to the right of termination by the Board of Selectmen as herein before provided, and said Company agrees that it will thereafter furnish said lights to said Town at the same rates, for such further period of not less than one month, and not more than six months, as the Board of Selectmen may, in writing, request.

"Article 13. Said Company agrees that if at any time after the legal termination of this contract, said Town shall, under or in consequence of any vote, or votes, or other acts or proceedings of said Town, or of any provisions of law then in force, or otherwise be compelled to purchase any portion of said Company's electric plant or property, rights or privileges or other thing whatsoever, the amount of said purchase money or moneys to be paid shall not in any event exceed the structural value of the company's poles, wires, lamps, meters, transformers and other apparatus and appliances then in actual use in said Town.

ville Electric Light Company has

I have taken such a deep interest in street lighting and have felt it my duty as a tax payer to put before the People ever presented to the town, and I hope that every one will read and be con-above, with correction, will protect us and be to our advantage.
